

REPORTER WANTS GOVERNMENTAL INQUIRY

Finds Increase of Price of Fire Water And Cold Bottle Has Created Consternation

BOOZE HISTERS GETTING SORE

Clearfield county landlords who recently boosted the price of booze did not get rich yesterday on their increased prices, at least the Clearfield contingent did not.

The new schedule was timed to go into effect on July 1st and the booze peddlers fondly hoped to reap a harvest from our thirsty patriots.

They reckoned without the Allegheny House, however. The proprietor there figured that a manufacturer's raise of ten cents on a case of 24 bottles of beer did not warrant the retailer in shaking down the consumer for $1.20 increase to pay the 25 cents. Furthermore they could not see where a raise of 50c per barrel on draft beer gave them any reason or excuse to cut the five cent glass down two ounces as with that cut on a barrel of beer would bring into the coffers of the retailer $28.80 for each barrel of beer sold.

Ten cent whiskey, which had been raised 35c per gallon, making a total cost of $1.85 per gallon, could be safely retailed at the old price, and because the raise would bring out of the pockets of the consumer the sum of $14.40, the Allegheny management didn't have "the heart" to do it. They also figured that the dollar per case raise on cased goods making a total cost of $10 per case could be safely paid and leave a nice percentage of profit at the old price of 15c per instead of 20c with its return of $67.60 per case.

Accordingly ever since the raise went into effect the Allegheny House has been the mecca for the thirsty. Talk about crowds, the five and ten cent store is not in it with the manner in which the ultimate consumer tramps his feet on the rail and his elbows on the mahogany. There was a steady stream going in and out all day yesterday while the barkeepers at the other third emporiums were kept busy breaking down the cobwebs the ubiquitous spider was spinning across the portals without interruption from the outside while at the same time making the genial "blow fly" keep his distance.

It is said the other fellows have coaxed, threatened and coaxed the Allegheny House management, but nothing doing, the people's popular prices prevail.

The Progress is not yet ready to agree with friend Woodrow regarding the necessity for beer and light wines, but if the people must have them, why not an inquiry into the cost of manufacture and retailing, the same as is being done with coal and other commodities and a price at retail fixed with an idea as to getting the profits from the sale of booze down to where they belong and no higher. The product has its rights, the retailer is entitled to fair compensation and the consumer who pays it all we think should certainly have his inning.

Action of the Clearfield County Men's association shows what they propose to do regardless of any and everybody; why not have an ornamental inquiry into the price of goods, which the President is necessary, and put the price it belongs at a reasonable and return.

These big boosting profits out of you and you will cut out a great booze peddlers and booze emporiums.

Men would not engage in this were it not for the 200 per cent profits and a condition such as is not herewith will go a long way toward solving the problem.

SLIGHT CHANCE MADE ON RIVER LINE TRAIN

Result In Mixed Train Keeping Up To Schedule Today But Mail Service Has Been Bad

TRAIN ARRIVES HERE AT 4.55

Some little change was made in the experiment "mixed train" being run on the River line of the New York Central Railroad company this morning. In addition to the combination baggage and passenger car attached to the way freight another crew and train was started down the River Line for the purpose, we are informed, of doing what is styled the mine or heavy freight work, it being the intention to send the "mixed train" straight through, with just the way freight for the crew to handle.

Postmaster Barclay again found it necessary to go down to the station in an effort to untangle the mail service. The first mail to reach Clearfield from the section served by the River line since Saturday last arrived at 11:05 last night over the Pennsylvania, and was delivered this morning. This was no doubt due to the fact that under the new arrangement of the "mixed train" the mail hitherto coming up the River line daily is now "pouched" via Karthaus and Lock Haven and Williamsport. The Karthaus postmaster has also requested the post office department to change her depository from Clearfield to Lock Haven for all postal funds.

The first trip of the new train worked out satisfactory today, so far as traveling per schedule was concerned. It left the station here promptly on time and we were informed that it reached every scheduled stopping point right on the dot, arriving in Keating at 1:15.

Trainmaster Quigley called The Progress office to give us this information this afternoon and said that the company claimed this train will give the River line people better service than ever before, as it will be possible for a person living at Karthaus to order a bill of goods over the phone in Clearfield at 8:30 in the morning and as a way freight car will be open at the station each morning until 9:30 o'clock it will be possible for the local merchant to fill the order, deliver same to the station and the goods will be in the hands of the customer in Karthaus at 12:30. The crew of the "mixed train" being required to handle nothing but way or local River line freight. He contends that the passenger traffic will not average twenty passengers per day and as they can travel right through and be less than two hours on the road from Keating to Clearfield they will have as good service as heretofore with the exception of having to ride the "mixed train" instead of a regular passenger.

Whether the schedule will work out satisfactorily in daily practice for the future only time will tell and we will have to wait for the judgment of the patrons of the road on the new move.

Pennsy Agent To The Rescue But Too Late

Modest Railroader Offered First Aid But Davis Beat Him to It

Bystanders at the Pennsylvania station yesterday afternoon were afforded no end of merriment by a happening which occurred when the afternoon passenger started to pull out for Tyrone at 2 o'clock.

A foreign woman who came into town on the New York Central en route to Tyrone was at the station preparatory to continuing her journey. Her trunk had not been brought across from the N. Y. C. and the poor woman was very much worked up over this state of affairs. She was down at the baggage room at the lower end of the station when the signal was given by the conductor to start the train. The brakeman had dropped the platform preparatory to closing up the vestibule before the woman noticed the train getting underway.

With a wild cry the lady made a mad rush for the train and gathering her skirts up under her arms as an aid to rapid locomotion she made the intervening seventy-five feet in nothing flat, due no doubt to the fact that her running gear were unhampered by neither flounce nor furbelow. The brakeman sensed the situation at a glance and as the sight was one to make strong men look twice, although he pulled the bell rope to stop the train was still in motion when the woman arrived. She was determined to make that train, however, and a little jump of four feet over the car platform was as nothing to her. She made a leap at the door and landed on the platform on her stomach. Being half way in she was neither in nor out and things looked desperate for a minute.

Station Agent Fletcher with an idea to the protection of the patrons of the road and for the purpose of obstructing the vision of the ribald populace and also prevent possible sun burn on a tender spot, gallantly yanked off his coat and rushed to the spot for the purpose of using the coat as a screen, but he was too late. Lloyd Davis chief mechanic at Wallace's garage, with rare presence of mind, ran over and by means of a couple of lusty shoves boosted the woman in far enough to allow the brakeman to catch her by the arm and she was hauled safely aboard, while "Old Sol" after winking his other eye, hid his face behind a convenient passing cloud and the train continued its journey.

Navy Department Asserts That No Less Than a Score Are At Work About 800 Miles From Coast

REPORT OF ENGAGEMENT NOT CONFIRMED

Washington, July 5.—Germany has planted a score of submarines not more than 800 miles out in the Atlantic in an effort to cut off communication lines according to the Navy department today.

The department announced that it has received an official report to the effect that submarines are operating off the Azores on one of the Portuguese islands 800 miles from the main land. The United States relay cable station is located there.

Navy officials refused to comment on the report that an American transport in the harbor helped in attacking a U-boat.

Governor Brumbaugh At Country Club

Spoke at Fourth of July Celebration Yesterday

The Clearfield-Curwensville Country club had a record breaking crowd at their Fourth of July celebration yesterday afternoon and evening which was the finest ever held there.

The committee deserve a great deal of credit for splendid program they had arranged which was greatly enjoyed by the guests and visitors.

At three o'clock in the afternoon was the flag raising at which time a beautiful American flag was presented by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Swoope of Madera. A very appropriate presentation speech was made by Roland D. Swoope. James P. O'Laughlin accepted the flag in behalf of the Country club. Following the patriotic address the flag was unfurled to the breeze.

Governor Brumbaugh who was the guest of the Country club yesterday gave a short talk which was patriotic and inspiring.

The Crescent band of the Bickford Fire Brick company under the direction of Horatio Ciccolo gave an excellent concert during the afternoon. Supper was served to more than two hundred guests.

After supper McKinley's orchestra furnished splendid music for the dancers. Many out of town visitors were entertained at the club.

NOT WASTING MUCH HERE NOW

It is said that "a big howitzer uses up the equivalent of 10 barrels of whiskey or twenty barrels of beer" in the form of alcohol every time it is fired. This had led Bob Mison to observe that the wastage of war is some'n scandalous.

The recent raise in price by the thirst purveyors locally may really be a war measure. If it is, it is surely working out satisfactorily in Clearfield.

NEW CENSORSHIP ESTABLISHED BY WAR DEPT.

All News From Pershing's Camp Must Be Cabled To Censor And By Him To Papers

WORK ON MORE SPEEDY PLANS

(By United Press)
 Washington, July 5.—A new censorship on the news from the American army in France was put into force by Secretary Baker today. He declared it was a protective measure.

At present, cables from American correspondents with Pershing's forces are relayed to Washington in care of the bureau on public information, where they are read.

Secretary Baker made the following official statement today:

"Pending the government's organization or General Pershing's headquarters in France and the arrival there of correspondents accredited to represent American news agencies temporary arrangements have been made to censor all cables from France regarding American troop movements. The arrangements are only temporary and will be replaced speedily by more direct methods. In the meantime an adequate force will deal with this matter and be on duty 24 hours in the day and will dispatch the cables in the order they come and only a little delay will result in their being relayed to Washington.

OLD GLORY FLOATS ON HIGHEST POLE

SUGGESTION OF MR. H. BROWN

The flag raising at the Big Knob in Girard township yesterday afternoon was an inspiring and joyous affair and was attended by several hundred people, coming in automobiles, and rigs of all kinds from many different sections of the county.

The exercises were opened with a patriotic by a choir under the leadership of Rev. E. V. Brown, while the flag raising occurred at 1:30.

Patriotic speeches were made by Hon. F. J. Harris, Matt Savage and Dr. Quigley of Clearfield; Dr. L. E. Fliegel of Karthaus and Rev. J. C. Maines, of Woodland.

The old veteran Hubert Letour, now 86 years of age, was awarded the privilege of raising Old Glory on the top of the flag staff which was erected in the field near the U. S. Topographic marker showing the height of the "Big Knob."

The day was an ideal one for the purpose and many visitors who made their first trip to Pete Brown's farm, were charmed with the beauty of this ideal spot. Mr. and Mrs. Brown kept open house all day and not only fed but looked after all the material comforts of their guests in the manner which has made their hospitable home such a mecca for travelers.

The "Big Knob" is the high point in Clearfield county and was the highest in the state and it was this account that the idea of placing a flag thereon with suitable ceremonies, suggested itself to Mr. H. B. Brown, of Clearfield, and who successfully worked out the details of the affair.

For the purpose of settling a few arguments and for public information we present herewith a list of the high points in this vicinity which we secured from H. W. Smith, Esq., who in turn received them from the Chief Engineer of the Pennsylvania Railroad company a few years ago:

THURSDAY EVENING, JULY 5, 1917.

When the new schedule of war taxes becomes operative we will have to carry a great deal more "chicken feed" in our pockets than heretofore.

More parents should take advantage of the playground privileges afforded them and send their children to the Clearfield Driving Park for instructive training every afternoon.

The best indication that the American people have sobered down to a realization of what is confronting the nation is the method of celebrating the Fourth of July which was very generally observed over all the nation yesterday. The old time fantastic parade and enormous sum of money burned up in dangerous fireworks disappeared from view and in their stead there was a reverent observance of the day which smacked more of Memorial Day than Independence Day. For many years, impulsive America permitted its children to be sacrificed, its homes to be burned and many other abuses to be tolerated in their patriotic zeal and fervor. Men realize today that Old Glory is being assailed in many lands, our great and pure emblem is the target for shot and shell from those who would tear it down and also that for which the red, white and blue stands. Our sentiments yesterday were born of determination rather than of that fanatical outburst which is the outgrowth of over-confidence and safety.

THEN AND NOW

The men who made the Fourth of July a national holiday never would have accomplished that feat if they had been cowards or self-seekers.

When the members of the Continental congress attached their signatures to the Declaration of Independence they performed an act which brought to each of them a splendid immortality.

Yet they had no reason to anticipate such a result. The truth is they were staring ruin in the face. They believed they were likely to achieve financial ruin; possibly an ignominious death.

The quarrel between King George III and the colonies was over a principle that many folks would have regarded as quite trivial. The tax parliament proposed to impose on the colonies was a very trifling thing.

But the fathers of the republic were willing to die rather than abandon their struggle on behalf of the principle of no taxation without representation. And some of them did seal their devotion to principle with their life's blood.

The outlook was not very hopeful. The wisest among them believed the colonies would be subdued and the leaders of the rebellions severely punished. They would have been had not the common people of the United Kingdom sympathized with their aspirations for freedom.

Did it ever strike the chaps who are grumbling about the shabby treatment awarded this country by England that the Revolution would have been a dead failure if Englishmen, lovers of liberty, had not fought our battles in parliament and antagonized the folly of King George III, a German?

Nevertheless our predecessors in the government of example which we may well emulate. They set before us the glowing principle that death is preferable to life in slavery.

We are about to send our sons and our grandsons to a distant land to aid the friends of freedom in the effort to destroy autocracy and install Democracy in the places of power. We are hoping and believing that the boys are going to be as strong and resolute as the patriots of the Revolution.

It is not a pleasant thing either for us or the boys, this great sacrifice, but we all realize that when duty commands there is nothing left for true men except to obey.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

ABOUT A WOOD WITCH.

"I'm afraid your animals will bite me."

[Adapted from Grimm's Fairy Tales.]

JACK and Evelyn sat down on the arms of daddy's chair, and so the bedtime story began: "A king's brother-out hunting in an enchanted woods once found an old witch sitting in a tree. She had turned the king into a stone. So when the hunter invited her to come down she pretended she was afraid of his pet animals. Both the king and his brother had a lot of pet animals, you know."

"I'm afraid that your animals will bite me," whined the old witch in the tree.

"They won't harm you," promised the hunter.

"I will throw you down my wand," said the old witch. "If you will hit them over their backs they will not bite me."

"When the hunter heard this he said: 'I am not going to hit my own pets. Come down or I will fetch you.'"

"What do you want?" cried the old witch. "You have no power over me."

"If you don't come down I will shoot you," answered the hunter.

"Shoot me then. I'm not afraid of your bullets," said she.

"So the hunter aimed and shot at her. But, being a witch, she was proof against bullets. So she only danced around on her branch of the tree and laughed and yelled: 'Shoot! You can't hurt me!'

"But the young hunter knew something about witches. He pulled three silver buttons off his coat and fired them in his gun. And all her witchcraft was no use now. So he soon hit her and brought her tumbling out of the tree."

"Then the young hunter caught her and said, 'Old witch, if you do not tell me at once where my brother, the king, is I will toss you right into my campfire and make an end of your evils.'"

"Of course the old witch was scared to death. So she begged 'Mercy, mercy!' and promised to tell."

"Soon as she got her breath she told the hunter that the king and his five pet animals were lying in a hollow in the forest, turned to stone."

"So the hunter took her by one scrawny arm, saying, 'Old sea cat, if you do not lead me to my brother and turn him and all his animals back to life again, into my campfire you go!'

"He had to be very stern with so wicked an old witch, you see. So she turned to the hollow and touched all the stones there, and immediately the king and his animals and many merchants, artists and shepherds rose up to thank the young hunter for having released them from the horrid spell."

I AM ABLE TO Work Again

Said Mr. Wheeland of Williamsport

"It is the First Time in Months That I Have Been Able to Work"—Thanks Goldine.

Mr. Wheeland lives at 1445 Erie avenue, and is well known here. He says: "I have had catarrh and bronchitis for several months. Would cough and spit up considerable mucus. Was also troubled with my kidneys and would have to get up three and four times at night to pass my water. My feet and legs from the knee down were swollen and would tire very easily and I haven't been able to work for months."

"I have been taking Goldine Alternate for about three weeks and it has helped me so that I am able to work again. It has helped me in every way and I think it is a remarkable medicine when it can help a person in my condition. I have doctored and tried lots of things but Goldine is the only thing that ever touched the spot."

Our testimonials are honest and unsolicited, given by men and women who have been helped by this new preparation when everything else has failed.

Mrs. Miles Brown, of 1539 Scott street, says: "I have had stomach trouble for years and have doctored and tried almost everything suggested, but this Goldine is the only medicine that ever helped me. Before taking it I had severe headaches in the back of my head and across my temples. I was short of breath and my hands would tremble so that I could hardly use them. But that is about all gone now, thanks to this wonderful medicine and I am glad to give my endorsement so that other people may take advantage of it and receive the benefit that I have."

Remember, I am at Stewart's Drug Store only. A talk with me, about Goldine costs you nothing and may save years of suffering."

WANT WAR COMMENT IN ENGLISH ONLY

Washington, July 3.—Foreigners unacquainted with the English language will be deprived of newspaper reading as a wartime diversion if the recommendation that foreign language newspapers be compelled to print in English all editorial expressions and news bearing on this government's foreign policies is adopted by the government as a war measure.

The American League for National Unity, which is fostering the move, urges Federal legislation to enforce such a ruling and, if necessary, governmental control of all foreign language papers.

The league charges that most foreign language newspapers (disseminate news giving "secret" aid and comfort to the enemy" and at the same time "only lukewarm support to administration."

Tell Your Wife Corns Lift Off

Doesn't hurt a bit to lift corns or calluses off with fingers.

Not a twinge of pain or soreness before applying, or afterwards. This may sound like a dream to corn pestered men and women who have been cutting, filing and wearing torturous plasters. Yes! Corns lift off and calluses peel off as if by magic.

A small bottle of freeze-one cost but a few cents at any drug store. Apply a few drops directly upon your tender corn or callus, and instantly the soreness disappears; then shortly the corn or callus will be so loose, that it lifts off.

Freezone dries instantly. It doesn't eat out the corn or callus, but just shrivels it up so it lifts away without even irritating the surrounding skin. Women should keep a tiny bottle handy on the dresser and never let a corn or callus ache twice.

Popular Lieutenant Is Wedded In New York

Will Return to Clearfield With Bride
In The Near Future.

Miss Madeleine Gelshehen, daughter of Mrs. Katherine G. Lower, of Park avenue, New York, became the bride early yesterday morning of Lieut. Ewing L. Rafferty of the Eighteenth Infantry, Pennsylvania National Guard. The wedding, which comes as a surprise to Lieut. Rafferty's friends, was quietly solemnized in the Church of St. Ignatius Loyola, New York. The Rev. George Quinn, officiated. Mrs. Charles D. Rafferty, a sister of the bride, whose husband is a first cousin of Mr. Rafferty, was present at the ceremony. The bride is a daughter of the late William H. Gelshehen, at one time president of the Garfield National Bank, New York. Lieut. Rafferty is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Bernard F. Rafferty, Jr., of Pittsburgh and a nephew of Mr. Charles Donnelly of Fifth avenue. He has two brothers, Kenneth S. Rafferty and Dr. Donald Rafferty, of Pittsburgh.

Lieut. Rafferty was graduated from Princeton University, class of 1906. He has taken a prominent part in amateur theatricals in Pittsburgh and in the East, and is himself the author of a number of plays and several books. His latest play "Every Man Militant," recently appeared in book form. Lieut. Rafferty is a splendid athlete. He was a star football player at Princeton, former intercollegiate champion hammer thrower, and has won scores of prizes in various field and track meets throughout the country. He is first lieutenant and Battalion Adjutant of the Third Battalion with headquarters in Clearfield, and regarded as one of the best machine gun operators in the National Guard. Lieut. Rafferty returned yesterday to Clearfield, Pa., where he is stationed. While in Pittsburgh he made his home at the Pittsburgh Athletic Club.—Pittsburgh Gazette Times.

ROLLING STONES"

Special at the Globe Theater Today

It is very true that "A rolling stone gathers no moss"—but as Buck Ryder sagely remarked to Dave Fulton, "Who wants to gather moss?" Owen Moore as Dave and Marguerite Courtot as the well-to-do moss, but the human obstacle that prevents him from rolling any further down the hill. Of course he is only a rolling stone in the sense that he has not yet found himself, for the boy is not in the least vicious at heart and when he meets this delightful little girl, Norma, she at once arouses all that is best in him.

When the play was produced on the stage it was declared by the metropolitan critics to be one of the most delightful combinations of laughs and thrills that has been seen for many a season. In its motion picture form it is even more amusing.

THRILLS GALORE IN NEW BENNETT FEATURE

"The Little Brother," the Triangle comedy drama in which Thomas H. Ince will present Enid Bennett in her second starring role, will be shown at the Tent Theatre Friday night. This is a fresh and interesting story of Jerry Ross, the daughter of an East Side tenement, who develops that the drudgery of her feminine life is needlessly oppressive. So she dresses herself in boy's attire and sets out to fight her battles on a plane of equality with the opposite sex.

Attracting the attention of a chemist interested in the "Big Brother" movement to reclaim wayward youths Jerry finds drama galore in the various experiences that befall her. In the end she is enabled to return the kindnesses of her benefactor in a manner that will satisfy the most fastidious patron of the films.

SOLDIERS' LETTERS

The following letter from Harry Meyers located at Honolulu is the first letter reaching Clearfield from that part of the world. We are glad to present it to our readers.

Schofield Barracks, Honolulu, June 16, 1917.

Dear Friend:

I will write you a few lines to let you know I am well and hope you are the same. We have been camping here at Slate Lake Crater, doing guard duty. Came down on the first of the month and will stay 'till next month.

We are guarding a pipe line. Go on guard every other day and the mosquitoes are so bad they nearly eat a fellow up.

You should be over here; it is a fine climate only some times it gets a little warm, but a fellow don't mind that.

This is some island. I can stand on a mountain peak and see the ocean on three sides. The island is only 30 miles long and 15 miles wide at the widest place.

We have all kinds of fruits. I have eaten so many pineapples that I am sick of them now. They make a person's teeth ache.

I had a letter from Edna the other day and she gave me your address. Say, some of these days you will be in the army too, and when you come in my time will nearly be out, but I am going to re-enlist.

Well, next month I will draw $36 on pay day. I draw $30 dollars as a soldier, 3 dollars more for sharpshooter and 3 dollars more for First Class Private. The 13th of the month was pay day but I am broke like all the rest of the boys.

Today we will all go out to Wakeke beach and have a swim. My company is on guard today. They will come off at 12 o'clock, and they will all be glad for it rained all night and the mud was knee-deep.

I heard that a lot of the boys in Clearfield had enlisted in the army. I wish some of them would come over here, for the only other fellow that's here from Clearfield is Cup.

Since the war started we have started to plant 1200 acres of ground and we had to go down there twice a week and work all day, and that got my goat, but since we came down here the 25th Infantry will have to do the work.

Our Colonel was promoted to the rank of General the other day and I don't know how our new Colonel is going to be.

Well, this is all I can think of this time I will close, hoping to hear from you soon.

General Maurice Explains Why Defeats Were Not Admitted

Optimistic in Determination to Win Back Lost Positions They Failed To Report Their Losses

By Lowell Mellett
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
London, May 25.—By Mail—Major General Maurice, director of military operations for the British army, a few days ago answered the question that has been bothering American correspondents for many months. The question was:

"Who's lying now?"
His answer, given emphatically, was: "The Germans!"

However, it wasn't as simple as that. The correspondents didn't ask the question out loud. They just looked it. They looked it hard enough to get it across, for right in the midst of an interpretation of recent events on the west front, the General suddenly stopped and smiled and said: "Perhaps I'd better explain something about communiques. For a long time there was a general impression that the German communiques were more reliable than our own."

The correspondents couldn't help nodding assent to this. They knew, too, what American editors have thought on the subject. The General smiled again and went on:

"Well, that impression was more or less correct."

The correspondents opened their several mouths and popped their several pairs of eyes. This was painful frankness.

"Here's a general rule: The dispatches of a losing commander. This is true even if they are equally honorable men."

"Suppose we lose a village in the midst of a hard day's fighting. Does the British officer directing the fight at that particular point immediately write the fact? No. He says, 'Well, they've got it now; but we'll get it back before this day's work is done. There'll be time enough to report it then.' But the German commander's very first action is to shoot along the news to headquarters that he has captured that village. I know that to be true, because it is exactly what the British officer would do if he were in the German's place."

"And in the same way when the German officer loses a village he holds up the report—sometimes more than a day—in the hope of winning it back before reporting. There's a certain amount of human nature in the army, you'll observe."

"So the communiques of the advancing army is the more reliable in that respect. Then there's the matter of prisoners taken. The advancing army sends its prisoners back of the lines to the detention cages as fast as they are taken and they are counted as fast as they reach the cages. The losing army commander, driven out of his own ground, doesn't know what proportion of his missing are killed, lying wounded on the field, taken prisoners or isolated for the time being."

"These two facts, taken together with the fact that a defeated army is always more disorganized than a winning army, explain in large part, why the communiques of the advancing army is likely to be the more accurate."

"The period in which the German communiques got its reputation for accuracy was the period when the German army was advancing on almost all fronts. That period is long past. The accuracy tables have been reversed."

One correspondent suggested that the general rule described scarcely covered the recent wide disparity of German and British statements.

"No," said the General, "for the first time—and I think it is rather significant of the way the war is going—German headquarters has been compelled to fall back on plain lying. Their communiques read more and more like fiction. They have one simple plan for most of them. They begin with attributing to the British and French armies a purpose, which isn't our purpose, and then show that we've failed to achieve it. 'A British effort to break through our line at such-and-such-a-place failed.' That sounds familiar, doesn't it? Well, the fact would be that we had not sought to break through their line at that point, that we had a definite, limited objective—and that we gained it. That has been the case, time and again this spring."

"And then, too, there have been interesting descriptions in the German communiques, of battles that never have taken place. I have no hesitation in saying German headquarters has embarked on a campaign of lying. Its purpose may be to keep the German people fooled, or there may be another reason. 'The German High Command only knows.'"

The peanut is the tramp of the nut family.

It gets into little wagons on street corners and whistles for the evening all day long.

It travels with circuses, hides away in the secret reaches of country grocery stores, finds its way into the old home table.

It is a restless, wandering, nut-like fellow that roams the world over looking for somebody to eat it. You'd never catch a walnut doing that.

You Don't Know When You Will Need A Thorough Antiseptic. Don't Take A Chance

In these days we hear a lot of people talking about antiseptics and the like in connection with the war. You have just as much need to be prepared to combat infection in a cut on the home as the wounded man on the battlefield.

20th Century Liniment is composed of infection-destroying ingredients that will render you safe from all chances of blood poison. Many a little cut has cost a man his life when a little of the 20th Century Liniment applied at the time would have worked like magic. If there are children in the home there is double need of the precaution. Get it at your druggist's, 50c and $1 sizes.

REPORTER WANTS GOVERNMENTAL INQUIRY

Finds Increase of Price of Fire Water And Cold Bottle Has Created Consternation

BOOZE HISTERS GETTING SORE

Clearfield county landlords who recently boosted the price of booze did not get rich yesterday on their increased prices, at least the Clearfield contingent did not.

The new schedule was timed to go into effect on July 1st and the booze peddlers fondly hoped to reap a harvest from our thirsty patriots.

They reckoned without the Allegheny House, however. The proprietor there figured that a manufacturer's raise of ten cents on a case of 24 bottles of beer did not warrant the retailer in shaking down the consumer for $1.20 increase to pay the 25 cents. Furthermore they could not see where a raise of 50c per barrel on draft beer gave them any reason or excuse to cut the five cent glass down two ounces as with that cut on a barrel of beer would bring into the coffers of the retailer $28.80 for each barrel of beer sold.

Ten cent whiskey, which had been raised 35c per gallon, making a total cost of $1.85 per gallon, could be safely retailed at the old price, and because the raise would bring out of the pockets of the consumer the sum of $14.40, the Allegheny management didn't have "the heart" to do it. They also figured that the dollar per case raise on cased goods making a total cost of $10 per case could be safely paid and leave a nice percentage of profit at the old price of 15c per instead of 20c with its return of $67.60 per case.

Accordingly ever since the raise went into effect the Allegheny House has been the mecca for the thirsty. Talk about crowds, the five and ten cent store is not in it with the manner in which the ultimate consumer tramps his feet on the rail and his elbows on the mahogany. There was a steady stream going in and out all day yesterday while the barkeepers at the other third emporiums were kept busy breaking down the cobwebs the ubiquitous spider was spinning across the portals without interruption from the outside while at the same time making the genial "blow fly" keep his distance.

It is said the other fellows have coaxed, threatened and coaxed the Allegheny House management, but nothing doing, the people's popular prices prevail.

The Progress is not yet ready to agree with friend Woodrow regarding the necessity for beer and light wines, but if the people must have them, why not an inquiry into the cost of manufacture and retailing, the same as is being done with coal and other commodities and a price at retail fixed with an idea as to getting the profits from the sale of booze down to where they belong and no higher. The product has its rights, the retailer is entitled to fair compensation and the consumer who pays it all we think should certainly have his inning.

Action of the Clearfield County Men's association shows what they propose to do regardless of any and everybody; why not have an ornamental inquiry into the price of goods, which the President's necessary, and put the price it belongs at a reasonable and return.

These big boosting profits out of you and you will cut out a great booze peddlers and booze emporiums.

Men would not engage in this were it not for the 200 per cent profits and a condition such as that herewith will go a long way toward solving the problem.

SLIGHT CHANCE MADE ON RIVER LINE TRAIN

Result In Mixed Train Keeping Up To Schedule Today But Mail Service Has Been Bad

TRAIN ARRIVES HERE AT 4.55

Some little change was made in the experiment "mixed train" being run on the River line of the New York Central Railroad company this morning. In addition to the combination baggage and passenger car attached to the way freight another crew and train was started down the River Line for the purpose, we are informed, of doing what is styled the mine or heavy freight work, it being the intention to send the "mixed train" straight through, with just the way freight for the crew to handle.

Postmaster Barclay again found it necessary to go down to the station in an effort to untangle the mail service. The first mail to reach Clearfield from the section served by the River line since Saturday last arrived at 11:05 last night over the Pennsylvania, and was delivered this morning. This was no doubt due to the fact that under the new arrangement of the "mixed train" the mail hitherto coming up the River line daily is now "pouched" via Karthaus and Lock Haven and Williamsport. The Karthaus postmaster has also requested the post office department to change her depository from Clearfield to Lock Haven for all postal funds.

The first trip of the new train worked out satisfactory today, so far as traveling per schedule was concerned. It left the station here promptly on time and we were informed that it reached every scheduled stopping point right on the dot, arriving in Keating at 1:15.

Trainmaster Quigley called The Progress office to give us this information this afternoon and said that the company claimed this train will give the River line people better service than ever before, as it will be possible for a person living at Karthaus to order a bill of goods over the phone in Clearfield at 8:30 in the morning and as a way freight car will be open at the station each morning until 9:30 o'clock it will be possible for the local merchant to fill the order, deliver same to the station and the goods will be in the hands of the customer in Karthaus at 12:30. The crew of the "mixed train" being required to handle nothing but way or local River line freight. He contends that the passenger traffic will not average twenty passengers per day and as they can travel right through and be less than two hours on the road from Keating to Clearfield they will have as good service as heretofore with the exception of having to ride the "mixed train" instead of a regular passenger.

Whether the schedule will work out satisfactorily in daily practice for the future only time will tell and we will have to wait for the judgment of the patrons of the road on the new move.

Pennsy Agent To The Rescue But Too Late

Modest Railroader Offered First Aid But Davis Beat Him to It

Bystanders at the Pennsylvania station yesterday afternoon were afforded no end of merriment by a happening which occurred when the afternoon passenger started to pull out for Tyrone at 2 o'clock.

A foreign woman who came into town on the New York Central en route to Tyrone was at the station preparatory to continuing her journey. Her trunk had not been brought across from the N. Y. C. and the poor woman was very much worked up over this state of affairs. She was down at the baggage room at the lower end of the station when the signal was given by the conductor to start the train. The brakeman had dropped the platform preparatory to closing up the vestibule before the woman noticed the train getting underway.

With a wild cry the lady made a mad rush for the train and gathering her skirts up under her arms as an aid to rapid locomotion she made the intervening seventy-five feet in nothing flat, due no doubt to the fact that her running gears were unhampered by neither flounce nor furbelow. The brakeman sensed the situation at a glance and as the sight was one to make strong men look twice, although he pulled the bell rope to stop the train was still in motion when the woman arrived. She was determined to make that train, however, and a little jump of four feet over the car platform was as nothing to her. She made a leap at the door and landed on the platform on her stomach. Being half way in she was neither in nor out and things looked desperate for a minute.

Station Agent Fletcher with an idea to the protection of the patrons of the road and for the purpose of obstructing the vision of the ribald populace and also prevent possible sun burn on a tender spot, gallantly yanked off his coat and rushed to the spot for the purpose of using the coat as a screen, but he was too late. Lloyd Davis chief mechanic at Wallace's garage, with rare presence of mind, ran over and by means of a couple of lusty shoves boosted the woman in far enough to allow the brakeman to catch her by the arm and she was hauled safely aboard, while "Old Sol" after winking his other eye, hid his face behind a convenient passing cloud and the train continued its journey.

The Clearfield-Curwensville Country club had a record breaking crowd at their Fourth of July celebration yesterday afternoon and evening which was the finest ever held there.

The committee deserve a great deal of credit for splendid program they had arranged which was greatly enjoyed by the guests and visitors.

At three o'clock in the afternoon was the flag raising at which time a beautiful American flag was presented by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Swoope of Madera. A very appropriate presentation speech was made by Roland D. Swoope. James P. O'Laughlin accepted the flag in behalf of the Country club. Following the patriotic address the flag was unfurled to the breeze.

Governor Brumbaugh who was the guest of the Country club yesterday gave a short talk which was patriotic and inspiring.

The Crescent band of the Bickford Fire Brick company under the direction of Horatio Ciccolo gave an excellent concert during the afternoon.

Supper was served to more than two hundred guests.

After supper McKinley's orchestra furnished splendid music for the dancers.

Many out of town visitors were entertained at the club.

NOT WASTING MUCH HERE NOW

It is said that "a big" howitzer uses up the equivalent of 10 barrels of whiskey or twenty barrels of beer in the form of alcohol every time it is fired. This had led Bob Minton to observe that the wastage of war is some'n scandalous.

The recent raise in price by the thirst purveyors locally may really be a war measure. If it is, it is surely working out satisfactorily in Clearfield.

NEW CENSORSHIP ESTABLISHED BY WAR DEPT.

All News From Pershing's Camp Must Be Cabled To Censor And By Him To Papers

WORK ON MORE SPEEDY PLANS

(By United Press)
 Washington, July 5.—A new censorship on the news from the American army in France was put into force by Secretary Baker today. He declared it was a protective measure.

At present, cables from American correspondents with Pershing's forces are relayed to Washington in care of the bureau on public information, where they are read.

Secretary Baker made the following official statement today:

"Pending the government's organization or General Pershing's headquarters in France and the arrival there of correspondents accredited to represent American news agencies temporary arrangements have been made to censor all cables from France regarding American troop movements. The arrangements are only temporary and will be replaced speedily by more direct methods. In the meantime an adequate force will deal with this matter and be on duty 24 hours in the day and will dispatch the cables in the order they come and only a little delay will result in their being relayed to Washington.

The famous Wright's Saxophone orchestra of Columbus, Ohio, again attracted a large crowd to the dance which was given in the ball room of the Dimeling hotel Tuesday evening.

OLD GLORY FLOATS ON HIGHEST POLE

SUGGESTION OF MR. H. BROWN

The flag raising at the Big Knob in Girard township yesterday afternoon was an inspiring and joyous affair and was attended by several hundred people, coming in automobiles, and rigs of all kinds from many different sections of the county.

The exercises were opened with a patriotic by a choir under the leadership of Rev. E. V. Brown, while the flag raising occurred at 1:30.

Patriotic speeches were made by Hon. F. J. Harris, Matt Hovins and Dr. Quigley of Clearfield; Dr. L. E. Fliegel of Karthaus and Rev. J. C. Maines, of Woodland.

The old veteran Hubert Letour, now 86 years of age, was awarded the privilege of raising Old Glory on the top of the flag staff which was erected in the field near the U. S. Topographic marker showing the height of the "Big Knob."

The day was an ideal one for the purpose and many visitors who made their first trip to Pete Brown's flag house, were charmed with the beauty of this ideal spot. Mr. and Mrs. Brown kept open house all day and not only fed but looked after all the material comforts of their guests in the manner which has made their hospitable home such a mecca for travelers.

The "Big Knob" is the high point in Clearfield county and was the highest in the state and it was this account that the idea of placing a flag thereon with suitable ceremonies, suggested itself to Mr. H. B. Brown, of Clearfield, and who successfully worked out the details of the affair.

For the purpose of settling a few arguments and for public information we present herewith a list of the high points in this vicinity which we secured from H. W. Smith, Esq., who in turn received them from the Chief Engineer of the Pennsylvania Railroad company a few years ago:

THURSDAY EVENING, JULY 5, 1917.

When the new schedule of war taxes becomes operative we will have to carry a great deal more "chicken feed" in our pockets than heretofore.

More parents should take advantage of the playground privileges afforded them and send their children to the Clearfield Driving Park for instructive training every afternoon.

The best indication that the American people have sobered down to a realization of what is confronting the nation is the method of celebrating the Fourth of July which was very generally observed over all the nation yesterday. The old time fantastic parade and enormous sum of money burned up in dangerous fireworks disappeared from view and in their stead there was a reverent observance of the day which smacked more of Memorial Day than Independence Day. For many years, impulsive America permitted its children to be sacrificed, its homes to be burned and many other abuses to be tolerated in their patriotic zeal and fervor. Men realize today that Old Glory is being assailed in many lands, our great and pure emblem is the target for shot and shell from those who would tear it down and also that for which the red, white and blue stands. Our sentiments yesterday were born of determination rather than of that fanatical outburst which is the outgrowth of over-confidence and safety.

THEN AND NOW

The men who made the Fourth of July a national holiday never would have accomplished that feat if they had been cowards or self-seekers.

When the members of the Continental congress attached their signatures to the Declaration of Independence they performed an act which brought to each of them a splendid immortality.

Yet they had no reason to anticipate such a result. The truth is they were staring ruin in the face. They believed they were likely to achieve financial ruin; possibly an ignominious death.

The quarrel between King George III and the colonies was over a principle that many folks would have regarded as quite trivial. The tax parliament proposed to impose on the colonies was a very trifling thing.

But the fathers of the republic were willing to die rather than abandon their struggle on behalf of the principle of no taxation without representation. And some of them did seal their devotion to principle with their life's blood.

The outlook was not very hopeful. The wisest among them believed the colonies would be subdued and the leaders of the rebellions severely punished. They would have been had not the common people of the United Kingdom sympathized with their aspirations for freedom.

Did it ever strike the chaps who are grumbling about the shabby treatment awarded this country by England that the Revolution would have been a dead failure if Englishmen, lovers of liberty, had not fought our battles in parliament and antagonized the folly of King George III, a German?

Nevertheless our predecessors in the government of example which we may well emulate. They set before us the glowing principle that death is preferable to life in slavery.

We are about to send our sons and our grandsons to a distant land to aid the friends of freedom in the effort to destroy autocracy and install Democracy in the places of power. We are hoping and believing that the boys are going to be as strong and resolute as the patriots of the Revolution.

It is not a pleasant thing either for us or the boys, this great sacrifice, but we all realize that when duty commands there is nothing left for true men except to obey.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

ABOUT A WOOD WITCH.

"I'm afraid your animals will bite me."

[Adapted from Grimm's Fairy Tales.]

JACK and Evelyn sat down on the arms of daddy's chair, and so the bedtime story began: "A king's brother-out hunting in an enchanted woods once found an old witch sitting in a tree. She had turned the king into a stone. So when the hunter invited her to come down she pretended she was afraid of his pet animals. Both the king and his brother had a lot of pet animals, you know."

"I'm afraid that your animals will bite me," whined the old witch in the tree.

"They won't harm you," promised the hunter.

"I will throw you down my wand," said the old witch. "If you will hit them over their backs they will not bite me."

"When the hunter heard this he said: 'I am not going to hit my own pets. Come down or I will fetch you.'"

"What do you want?" cried the old witch. "You have no power over me."

"If you don't come down I will shoot you," answered the hunter.

"Shoot me then. I'm not afraid of your bullets," said she.

"So the hunter aimed and shot at her. But, being a witch, she was proof against bullets. So she only danced around on her branch of the tree and laughed and yelled: 'Shoot! You can't hurt me!'

"But the young hunter knew something about witches. He pulled three silver buttons off his coat and fired them in his gun. And all her witchcraft was no use now. So he soon hit her and brought her tumbling out of the tree."

"Then the young hunter caught her and said, 'Old witch, if you do not tell me at once where my brother, the king, is I will toss you right into my campfire and make an end of your evils.'"

"Of course the old witch was scared to death. So she begged 'Mercy, mercy!' and promised to tell."

"Soon as she got her breath she told the hunter that the king and his five pet animals were lying in a hollow in the forest, turned to stone."

"So the hunter took her by one scrawny arm, saying, 'Old sea cat, if you do not lead me to my brother and turn him and all his animals back to life again, into my campfire you go!'

"He had to be very stern with so wicked an old witch, you see. So she turned to the hollow and touched all the stones there, and immediately the king and his animals and many merchants, artists and shepherds rose up to thank the young hunter for having released them from the horrid spell."

I AM ABLE TO Work Again

Said Mr. Wheeland of Williamsport

"It is the First Time in Months That I Have Been Able to Work"—Thanks Goldine.

Mr. Wheeland lives at 1445 Erie avenue, and is well known here. He says: "I have had catarrh and bronchitis for several months. Would cough and spit up considerable mucus. Was also troubled with my kidneys and would have to get up three and four times at night to pass my water. My feet and legs from the knee down were swollen and would tire very easily and I haven't been able to work for months."

"I have been taking Goldine Alternate for about three weeks and it has helped me so that I am able to work again. It has helped me in every way and I think it is a remarkable medicine when it can help a person in my condition. I have doctored and tried lots of things but Goldine is the only thing that ever touched the spot."

Our testimonials are honest and unsolicited, given by men and women who have been helped by this new preparation when everything else has failed.

Mrs. Miles Brown, of 1539 Scott street, says: "I have had stomach trouble for years and have doctored and tried almost everything suggested, but this Goldine is the only medicine that ever helped me. Before taking it I had severe headaches in the back of my head and across my temples. I was short of breath and my hands would tremble so that I could hardly use them. But that is about all gone now, thanks to this wonderful medicine and I am glad to give my endorsement so that other people may take advantage of it and receive the benefit that I have."

Remember, I am at Stewart's Drug Store only. A talk with me, about Goldine costs you nothing and may save years of suffering."

WANT WAR COMMENT IN ENGLISH ONLY

Washington, July 3.—Foreigners unacquainted with the English language will be deprived of newspaper reading as a wartime diversion if the recommendation that foreign language newspapers be compelled to print in English all editorial expressions and news bearing on this government's foreign policies is adopted by the government as a war measure.

The American League for National Unity, which is fostering the move, urges Federal legislation to enforce such a ruling and, if necessary, governmental control of all foreign language papers.

The league charges that most foreign language newspapers (disseminate news giving "secret" aid and comfort to the enemy" and at the same time "only lukewarm support to administration."

Tell Your Wife Corns Lift Off

Doesn't hurt a bit to lift corns or calluses off with fingers.

Not a twinge of pain or soreness before applying, or afterwards. This may sound like a dream to corn pestered men and women who have been cutting, filing and wearing torturous plasters. Yes! Corns lift off and calluses peel off as if by magic.

A small bottle of freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store. Apply a few drops directly upon your tender corn or callus, and instantly the soreness disappears; then shortly the corn or callus will be so loose, that it lifts off.

Freezone dries instantly. It doesn't eat out the corn or callus, but just shrivels it up so it lifts away without even irritating the surrounding skin. Women should keep a tiny bottle handy on the dresser and never let a corn or callus ache twice.

Lower Tire Cost Than Ever—NOW

LOOK HERE ON SATURDAY

Every day more people are coming to depend upon The Progress for all their news. Therefore it is more than ever up to The Progress to get all the news. The Progress being an evening paper it has been our custom to get all the local and county news each evening from the last issue up to the very moment of going to press but as to national news we carried only that which transpired between the hours of midnight (the hour at which the city dailies go to press) and 4 P. M. the next day at our press time. For those who depend on The Progress there for all their news this leaves a void in the intelligence of the day and it is to remedy this defect and adapt The Progress to a broader usefulness that we take this step.

Advantages
Many people complain of getting more papers than they can read but they hesitate to stop any of them for fear of missing some of the big news of the day. By adopting our proposed plan, readers of The Progress are assured of all the local and county news, the front page will carry the very latest news, page two will carry the editorials, page four the Gossip column and page three will carry a summary of the big news carried by all the city morning dailies. No matter which city daily you read you are bound to miss something big once in a while for they do not always carry the same news. The Progress will look them all over and present to you beginning Saturday evening, a summary of the news of the day before, gleaned from the pages of the metropolitan newspapers. With this plan put into practice no one need hesitate to depend on The Progress for all the news.

Mrs. A. D. Denny and Mrs. G. D. Pennypacker left for Huntingdon after a short visit with Mrs. J. L. Curtin.

Very impressive was the flag raising at the Bickford plant here on the morning of the Fourth. A large concourse awaited the exercises when Manager J. M. McKinley opened the program by presenting Rev. J. Max Lantz for the opening address. Pulse quickening were his fervent patriotic sentences. Honorable W. I. Swoope of Clearfield, made the principal address of the occasion being presented by Rev. J. M. Lantz. Instructive, humorous, inspiring was his red-blooded oration. The Crescent band of the Bickford Fire Brick company gave a number of appropriate selections during the program and as led by Frampton Bailey, the great new flag was being raised the Star Spangled Banner was rendered. A detail of the 18th Regiment added much to the occasion by their marching in the parade to the exercises and by their salute to the flag as it was being raised. The flags of some of our allies were carried with Old Glory in the parade from the bank to the exercises and their presence added much to the impressiveness of the flag raising. After the oration, a prayer was made by Rev. Joseph H. Cooke.

Robert S. Stiver and son John, of Bellwood, were Wednesday callers at the Baptist parsonage, and at the home of his brother A. Curtin Stiver.

Letters to the Editor

Clearfield, Pa., July 4th, 1917
To the Editor of the Clearfield Progress:

Dear Sir:
As a member of the Board of Governors of the Clearfield Chamber of Commerce, I feel that you, in your article published in The Progress of last Tuesday's issue, have done W. I. Betts, President of the Chamber of Commerce, an injustice, and have criticized his actions without just cause. It is true that the Editor of the "Progress" was not requested to be present at the meeting held by the representatives of the New York Central Railroad and the Clearfield Chamber of Commerce, and neither were the Editors of any of the other newspapers of Clearfield invited to be present. This was a business meeting, had jointly by the officers of the New York Central railroad and the Chamber of Commerce of Clearfield, called at the instance of the New York Central people, to adjust certain matters regarding the train, and other services, on their lines, in which the people of Clearfield County are vitally interested; hence it would have been highly improper for Mr. Betts to have invited third parties into this conference. The meetings of the Chamber of Commerce are not private and any citizen is welcome at its sessions. The Board of Governors appreciate the courteous treatment extended them by the newspapers of the Borough and realize the vast amount of work done gratuitously by them in promoting the interests of the Borough, but they do feel that your "knocking" in this case is unwarranted to say the least, and unfair to Mr. Betts.

Kindly give this article the same publicity that you gave your "criticism."

Yours truly,

W. H. PATTERSON

Editor's note:

The above communication from W. H. Patterson, a member of the Board of Governors of the Chamber of Commerce was handed the Editor this morning for publication. The Editor would much prefer in the interests of harmony, to let this matter sink into the dim past and be forgotten but since this communication indicates that the point at issue was simply the matter of admission to the meeting it is necessary to make reply to it. We understand perfectly well that the meetings of the Chamber of Commerce are not private but we were given to understand that this particular meeting was to be of a semi-private nature whereupon we made known the fact that we had certain petitions, letters and telegrams which we desired to present. We did not seek a voice in the meeting. We formally offered these exhibits to the President of the Chamber of Commerce and asked for permission to present them and were told that this would depend on the action of the Board of Governors who would have a short session previous to the conference with Mr. McCormick. We had no desire to foist these exhibits on the Board of Governors if they did not care to use them and with the full knowledge of the President of the Chamber of Commerce we were at The Progress office waiting for news of the acceptance or rejection of the exhibits at 7 P. M. on the evening of the day of conference. At 11 P. M. we were still without knowledge regarding it and had no alternative but to present them to Mr. McCormick ourselves.

We had no desire to do anyone an injustice but the situation demanded that we tell those who wrote and wired us and those who signed the petition why those papers were not presented at the meetings as per their requests.

We assure the Board of Governors and the President of the Chamber of Commerce as well that they will continue to have the active cooperation of The Progress in all movements for the advancement of the interests of Clearfield Borough and Clearfield county and sincerely hope that we will not again be placed in a position where we may have a chance to criticize.

The national hymn was sung and the beautiful silk flag adorned the front of the room.

UNCLE SAM'S THRIFT THOUGHT FOR TODAY

What are you going to do with that half bottle of left-over milk in your refrigerator, Madam Housewife?

The cream has been taken off but there is good food value in what is left.

Here is one possibility, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture, for a nourishing dish for either luncheon or supper:

Nourishing Milk Gravy
(Enough for family of two adults and three children. Reduce proportions if for smaller number.)

1 pint skim milk.
2-cup flour.
2-level teaspoons butter or cooking fat.

Melt butter or other fat in sauce pan. Add flour and salt mixed. Blend. Add milk gradually. Heat, stirring constantly until thick.

Flavor, if desired, with any left-over minced meat or fish which may be on hand, or minced ham or a slice of broiled bacon, crumbled.

Serve on boiled hominy, samp, rice, potatoes, macaroni, or slices of corn or other bread, or toast.

NEW ARMIES TO BE WELL FED

Washington, July 5.—The National Army will be well fed if preparation counts for aught.

The general staff is working on a plan to feed the more than half million rookies who will assemble in the 16 cantonments for training next fall.

The variety of the menu will necessarily be limited to the regular army ration. But it will be properly prepared and served.

In recent wars the "grub" of the valiant volunteer has been the object of scandal. It was "embalmed beef" in the Spanish War. On the border last year the National Guard howled lustily against the army mess. The answer was incompetent cooks.

To guard against repetition of such complaints the General Staff has completed plans to train a gigantic army of cooks before the cantonments open. Within a few weeks thousands of young men will be mobilized and instructed in the art of military culinary. When the cantonments open the new cooks will be right on the job ready to feed the recruits.

The instruction will include how to feed a company of 150 men three times a day on schedule time, kitchen sanitation, the most importance to the health of men—and how to lend a ton of variety to the limited possibilities of the army ration.

There will be no cause for apologies for the food officials are determined. The Regular Army soldiers thrive on it. It is pure. It will be properly prepared. And there will be enough to keep every soldier well and fit, military heads say.

PREDICTS JEWISH NATION IN PALESTINE

(By United Press)

New York, July 5.—A Jewish nation with modern cities, a free government and a population of two million will be established in Palestine after the war, in the opinion of Nathan Strauss philanthropist.

He looks for a marked exodus of Jews from the United States and other countries, back to their fatherland. Religious Jews, he believes, will not hesitate to give up their wealth and property in America and return to Palestine to fulfill the Biblical prophecy. Strauss also expects thousands of Christians to go there.

"We will establish a government along whatever lines the allies suggest," declared Strauss. "There is no selfishness about it. The B. I. P. says we will have our own country back and the allies are winning it back. They must decide what is best."

He indicated however, that a republican form of government under a protectorate of the powers would be best. Asked whether the country would be modernized, as Manila has been, he said:

"Given half a chance we will make it the Paradise of the earth. It will be up-to-date in every particular. The Palestine soil is better than that of California—I'm satisfied of that through my own experiments. The Jewish nation will be self-supporting. I don't think we will establish great

It is very true that "A rolling stone gathers no moss"—but as Buck Ryder sagely remarked to Dave Fulton, "Who wants to gather moss?" Owen Moore as Dave and Marguerite Courtot as the well, not the moss, but the human obstacle that prevents him from rolling any further down the hill. Of course he is only a rolling stone in the sense that he has not yet found himself, for the boy is not in the least vicious at heart and when he meets this delightful little girl, Norma, she at once arouses all that is best in him.
When the play was produced on the stage it was declared by the metropolitan critics to be one of the most delightful combinations of laughs and thrills that has been seen for many a season. In its motion picture form it is even more amusing.

THRILLS GALORE IN NEW BENNETT FEATURE

"The Little Brother," the Triangle comedy drama in which Thomas H. Ince will present Enid Bennett in her second starring role, will be shown at the Tent Theatre Friday night. This is a fresh and interesting story of Jerry Ross, the daughter of an East Side tenement, who develops that the drudgery of her feminine life is needlessly oppressive. So she dresses herself in boy's attire and sets out to fight her battles on a plane of equality with the opposite sex.
Attracting the attention of a chemist interested in the "Big Brother" movement to reclaim wayward youths Jerry finds drama galore in the various experiences that befall her. In the end she is enabled to return the kindnesses of her benefactor in a manner that will satisfy the most fastidious patron of the films.

SOLDIERS' LETTERS

The following letter from Harry Meyers located at Honolulu is the first letter reaching Clearfield from that part of the world. We are glad to present it to our readers.

Schofield Barracks, Honolulu,
June 16, 1917.

Dear Friend:

I will write you a few lines to let you know I am well and hope you are the same. We have been camping here at Slate Lake Crater, doing guard duty. Came down on the first of the month and will stay 'till next month.

We are guarding a pipe line. Go on guard every other day and the mosquitoes are so bad they nearly eat a fellow up.

You should be over here; it is a fine climate only some times it gets a little warm, but a fellow don't mind that.

This is some island. I can stand on a mountain peak and see the ocean on three sides. The island is only 30 miles long and 15 miles wide at the widest place.

We have all kinds of fruits. I have eaten so many pineapples that I am sick of them now. They make a person's teeth ache.

I had a letter from Edna the other day and she gave me your address. Say, some of these days you will be in the army too, and when you come in my time will nearly be out, but I am going to re-enlist.

Well, next month I will draw $36 on pay day. I draw 30 dollars as a soldier, 3 dollars more for sharpshooter and 3 dollars more for First Class Private. The 13th of the month was pay day but I am broke like all the rest of the boys.

Today we will all go out to Wakeke beach and have a swim. My company is on guard today. They will come off at 12 o'clock, and they will all be glad for it rained all night and the mud was knee-deep.

I heard that a lot of the boys in Clearfield had enlisted in the army. I wish some of them would come over here, for the only other fellow that's here from Clearfield is Cup.

Since the war started we have started to plant 1200 acres of ground and we had to go down there twice a week and work all day, and that got my goat, but since we came down here the 25th Infantry will have to do the work.

Our Colonel was promoted to the rank of General the other day and I don't know how our new Colonel is going to be.

Well, this is all I can think of this time I will close, hoping to hear from you soon.

HARRY F. MYERS,
Co. M, 1st Infantry,
Honolulu.

General Maurice Explains Why Defeats Were Not Admitted

Optimistic in Determination to Win Back Lost Positions
They Failed To Report Their Losses

By Lowell Mellett
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
London, May 25.—By Mail—Major General Maurice, director of military operations for the British army, a few days ago answered the question that has been bothering American correspondents for many months. The question was:

"Who's lying now?"
His answer, given emphatically, was:
"The Germans!"

However, it wasn't as simple as that. The correspondents didn't ask the question out loud. They just looked it. They looked it hard enough to get it across, for right in the midst of an interpretation of recent events on the west front, the General suddenly stopped and smiled and said:
"Perhaps I'd better explain something about communiques. For a long time there was a general impression that the German communiques were more reliable than our own."

The correspondents couldn't help nodding assent to this. They knew, too, what American editors have thought on the subject. The General smiled again and went on—
"Well, that impression was more or less correct."

The correspondents opened their several mouths and popped their several pairs of eyes. This was painful frankness.

"Here's a general rule: The dispatches of a losing commander. This is true even if they are equally honorable men."

"Suppose we lose a village in the midst of a hard day's fighting. Does the British officer directing the fight at that particular point immediately write the fact? No. He says, 'Well, they've got it now; but we'll get it back before this day's work is done. There'll be time enough to report it then.' But the German commander's very first action is to shoot along the news to headquarters that he has captured that village. I know that to be true, because it is exactly what the British officer would do if he were in the German's place."

"And in the same way when the German officer loses a village he holds up the report—sometimes more than a day—in the hope of winning it back before reporting. There's a certain amount of human nature in the army, you'll observe."

"So the communiques of the advancing army is the more reliable in that respect. Then there's the matter of prisoners taken. The advancing army sends its prisoners back of the lines to the detention cages as fast as they are taken and they are counted as fast as they reach the cages. The losing army commander, driven out of his own ground, doesn't know what proportion of his missing are killed, lying wounded on the field, taken prisoners or isolated for the time being."

"These two facts, taken together with the fact that a defeated army is always more disorganized than a winning army, explain in large part, why the communiques of the advancing army is likely to be the more accurate."

"The period in which the German communiques got its reputation for accuracy was the period when the German army was advancing on almost all fronts. That period is long past. The accuracy tables have been reversed."

One correspondent suggested that the general rule described scarcely covered the recent wide disparity of German and British statements.

"No," said the General, "for the first time—and I think it is rather significant of the way the war is going—German headquarters has been compelled to fall back on plain lying. Their communiques read more and more like fiction. They have one simple plan for most of them. They begin with attributing to the British and French armies a purpose, which isn't our purpose, and then show that we've failed to achieve it."

"A British effort to break through our line at such-and-such-a-place failed. That sounds familiar, doesn't it? Well, the fact would be that we had not sought to break through their line at that point, that we had a definite, limited objective—and that we gained it. That has been the case, time and again this spring."

"And then, too, there have been interesting descriptions in the German communiques, of battles that never have taken place. I have no hesitation in saying German headquarters has embarked on a campaign of lying. Its purpose may be to keep the German people fooled, or there may be another reason. The German High Command only knows."

Negro women as section hands have made their appearance in the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad yards at St. Louis.

The peanut is the tramp of the nut family.

It gets into little wagons on street corners and whistles for the evening all day long.

It is a restless, wandering, nut-like fellow that roams the world over looking for somebody to eat it.
